LocateInWestAllis.com Open for Business

City of West Allis (pop. 60,300). The City of West Allis has installed a new feature to its website called LocateInWestAllis.com that allows businesses, investors, and developers to discover “live” data on real estate opportunities within the City. The new feature allows individuals to search land for development, spaces for lease, and prime properties that are for sale.

“West Allis is a great location with a number of prime locations and opportunities to expand or to start a business,” stated Mayor Dan Devine. He added, “This is a convenient way for individuals to explore our City and find that unique location.”

The LocateInWestAllis.com feature works in two ways. First, by adding LocateInWestAllis.com to an inquiry box of a search engine, one will be directed to a table that offers hyperlinks to lists of available properties and spaces. The lists provide additional links of important materials such as brochures, demographics, contact information, listing prices, lease rates, etc. Another great way to utilize the new feature is visiting the City of West Allis website and selecting the Department of Development followed by Economic Development and a click on “Commercial Property Search.”

“Getting interested parties quick and real time information is business friendly and a great marketing tool for the City,” stated Alderman Tom Lajsic. The new feature is supported by a subscription to Exceligent – a commercial real estate information and technology provider.

Property owners in West Allis interested in adding their space or property and are not currently represented by a real estate broker, should call the Department of Development at (414) 302-8468.
